

Claims

- I claim:
1. A male genital protective device formed of a substantially rigid material comprising:
 - a first portion shaped in an elongated manner to substantially conform to a penis; and
 - a second portion shaped in an oval manner to substantially conform to a male scrotum.
 2. The protective device of claim 1 wherein said first portion is positioned above said second portion.
 3. The protective device of claim 1 further comprising a flange positioned at the lower end of the protective device which facilitates securing the protective device to the male body to minimize horizontal and vertical movement.
 4. The protective device of claim 1, wherein said flange is made of a flexible plastic material that deforms upon impact to further absorb and deflect the impact from the genitals.
 5. The protective device of claim 1, wherein said second portion is formed into two separate portions to substantially secure the left and right testicles to minimize jarring.
 6. The protective device of claim 5, wherein said two separate portions are formed horizontally for securing said left and right testicles in a horizontal position.
 7. The protective device of claim 1, wherein the first portion is positioned vertically on said device to hold the male penis in a vertical position pointed upwards close to the body.
 8. The protective device of claim 1, wherein said rigid material is a plastic.

9. A male genital protective device providing increased comfort for a wearer and configured for positioning the male penis in an upward position against the human body and the testicles in a horizontal position below the penis wherein said device is comprised of a rigid material capable of withstanding a blunt force blow and absorbing and diverting the impact of said blow away from the genital area to the pubic bone region.